1394-1468 Johannes Gutenberg was a German goldsmith and printer who introduced modern book printing. His invention of mechanical movable type printing started the Printing Revolution and is widely regarded as the most important event of the modern period.

1918 Hermann Zapf is a German typeface designer who lives in Darmstadt, Germany. Zapf's work, which includes Palatino and Optima, has been widely copied, often against his will. The best known example may be Monotype's Book Antiqua, which shipped with Microsoft Office and was widely considered a "knockoff" of Palatino.

1878 Paul was a German typeface designer, most notably of Futura. He was suspicious of abstract art and disliked many forms of modern culture, such as jazz, cinema, and dancing. But equally, he admired the functionalist strain in modernism. Thus, Renner can be seen as a bridge between the traditional (19th century) and the modern (20th century). He attempted to fuse the Gothic and the roman typefaces.

1490-1567 Claude Garamond was a Parisian publisher. He was one of the leading type designers of his time, and is credited with the introduction of the apostrophe, the accent and the cedilla to the French language. Several contemporary typefaces, including those currently known as Garamond, Granjon, and Sabon, reflect his influence.

1865-1947 Frederic W. Goudy was a prolific American type designer who created more than 90 typeface designs. In 1903, Goudy became the co-founder of the Village Press in Park Ridge, Illinois. This venture was modeled on the Arts and Crafts movement ideals of William Morris.

1872-1948 Morris Fuller Benton was an influential American typeface designer who headed the design department of the American Type Founders (ATF), for which he was the chief type designer from 1900 to 1937. Benton was America's most prolific type designer, having completed 221 typefaces, ranging from revivals of historical models like ATF Bodoni, to adding new weights to existing faces such as Goudy Old Style and Cheltenham, and designing a variety of original fonts.

1900-1969 Beatrice Warde was a communicator on typography. For over 30 years she was the editor of the Recorder and the Monotype Newsletter as part of her devoted service to The Monotype with writings like The Crystal Goblet, Sixteen Essays on Typography. She was also Stanley Morison's lieutenant in the great work of Britain's typographical renaissance.

1937 Matthew Carter is a type designer who resides in Cambridge, Massachusetts. In 1981, Carter and his colleague Mike Parker created Bitstream Inc. This digital type foundry is currently one of the largest suppliers of type. Matthew Carter focuses on improving many typefaces' readability. Georgia and Verdana are two fonts that have been created primarily for viewing on computer monitors.

1961 In the mid-1980s Zuzana Licko and Rudy Vanderlans founded Émigré which produced the magazine, Emigre, and designed and distributed original fonts. Vanderlans was editor, while Licko was responsible for many successul Emigre fonts. In the mid-1990s, Licko worked on two notable revivals: Mrs Eaves, based on Baskerville, and Filosofia, based on Bodoni.

1975 Laura Worthington resides in rural southeast Arizona. After training and working as a graphic designer since the mid '90s, she turned her lettering and typography skills into a business, publishing her first typeface in 2010. She has since published more than 200 typefaces, and designed custom faces for many Fortune 500 companies.

1740-1813 Giambattista Bodoni was an Italian engraver, publisher, printer and typographer remembered for designing a family of different typefaces called Bodoni. Bodoni achieved an unprecedented level of technical refinement, allowing him to reproduce letterforms with very thin "hairlines", standing in sharp contrast to the thicker lines of the characters.

1937 Eric Gill was a British sculptor, typeface designer, stonecutter and printmaker, who was associated with the Arts and Crafts movement. He is a controversial figure, with his well-known religious views and subject matter being seen as at odds with his sexual and paraphiliac behaviour and erotic art.

1961 Max Miedinger was a Swiss typeface designer. He was famous for creating Helvetica in 1957. Marketed as a symbol of cutting-edge Swiss technology, Helvetica went global at once.
